METZ CUTS OFF FOUR HEADS.
SAYS HE WILL TURN BUREAU OF
ARREARS INSIDE OUT

And Make It No Longer a "Home for Inebriates" sets Mrs. Metz Force and in closing to bring the Bureau into Convenient Shape for Prompt Daily Use.
Comptroller Metz has begun to reorganize the Bureau for the Collection of Arrearments and Arrears. Edward A. Slattery, who was the collector until a couple of months ago and "was reduced because it was found that he was giving more attention to the books of certain surety companies than to the books of the department, was dropped altogether yesterday.
Deputy Collector J. B. A. Mullaly was removed altogether with three clerks in the bureau. Mr. Metz said the men had been discharged on the technical ground that they had been "absent without leave." Then he added:
"I'm going to turn that office inside out.
It's no longer going to be kept up as a Home for Inebriates."
For the purpose of bringing the records of the bureau up to date Mr. Metz has certified to him a list of eighty-two searchers and clerks. These men, in order that the daily routine of the office shall not be interfered with, will work between 3 P.M. and midnight. Mr. Metz a few days ago asked the Bar Association to appoint a representative to assist in the reorganization of the bureau. In response the association named Henry Galbraith Ward, chairman of its executive committee.
In a statement issued yesterday explaining his plans Mr. Metz said: Because of the inadequate and cumbersome procedure attaching to keeping the detailed records pertaining to the arrears of taxes, assessments on water rents in the several boroughs, it is my purpose to establish a system which will permit of ready ascertaining and determining the exact amount of unpaid taxes, assessments and water rents on each piece of property and property throughout the greater city.
It appears that several years ago an attempt was made in the former city of New York to compile such arrears pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 538 of the Laws of 1880, but some of the records when completed were found to be useless, and it was therefore necessary to resume the old or previous method of preparing bills, which involves in each case examining the records of the Bureau back to the date of its organization in 1841.
It is proper that I should state that this result was due to the fact that the men employed to do the work were unfamiliar with the records in the Arrears Bureau and had not sufficient experience to analyze the entries in connection with the various changes in the land map of the city and property determine the legal effect of the entries.
My plan includes keeping a ledger account dealing with each piece of property, property, showing the amount of taxes, assessments and water rents levied thereon and in arrears, and the liquidation thereof, so that upon an application for a bill for all arrears against any particular piece of property the same can be produced in a minute.
The Board of Estimate has appropriated $48,000 to pay for the expense of reorganizing the bureau.

MRS. PLATT'S SON-IN-LAW DEAD.
Francis J. Carmody's Illness Ends Fatally in Washington.

Francis Joseph Carmody died suddenly yesterday at Washington. He was Assistant United States District Attorney here until his illness last fall prompted him to resign. He was brought into some prominence last summer when the trouble of Senator and Mrs. Platt were being publicly discussed. He was married to Miss Margaret Louise Snow, daughter of Mrs.
Platt, in Grace Church, New York, on December 19, 1905. Mrs. Carmody had been away from her husband for several weeks when the newspaper printed sensational stories concerning her mother, Mrs. Platt, and told in great detail of happenings at the Platt home at Highland Mills, in some of which Mr. Carmody figured. He declared at the time that the estrangement between himself and his wife was due to her mother's influence. He was a native of Minneapolis, where he was interested in the State militia, and had the rank of Colonel.
He was for a time Washington correspondent for a Minneapolis newspaper and then studied law. His mother and father and two brothers live in Washington. Soon after the Platt stories were printed last summer Mr. Carmody broke down in health from worry. Pleurisy developed and was followed by blood poisoning.
A member of Mr. Carmody's family said last night that Mrs. Carmody had requested over the telephone from New York that she be permitted to attend the funeral and that the request had been denied.

CITY LEOPARD CENSUS LEAPS.
Kitty Presents Teddy, Alice and Nick to the Municipality.

When Keeper Hoey went on duty yesterday morning in the lion house of the Central Park menagerie he found that there were three spotted leopard babies in the cage of Kitty, the mild tempered leopard. This is the third time within five years that she has made similar presents to the city. The latest arrivals are strong and healthy and were doing well yesterday.

It was discovered that two of the litter were males. When it came to selecting names for the youngsters the keepers decided that they should be known as Teddy, Nick and Alice. After the names had been selected it was found that the politics of the leopard was a bit mixed. Dick, the father, was named after a Tammany ex-leader.

The coming of the little ones had been expected, and a large box had been put in Kitty's cage so that she might keep her young from public view until they had grown out of babyhood.

Lions, tigers and leopards usually kill their young in captivity unless they are sheltered from public observation. The mother is afraid that her youngsters will be kidnapped.

TRENT'S ODD CALLING.
Had a Secret Process by Which He Renewed Life of Precious Documents.

George Trent, who died Thursday at his home, 177A Hull street, Brooklyn, at the age of 87, was the inventor of a secret process by which he was enabled to give renewed life to precious documents. It was said of him that he restored several letters written by Queen Victoria and that the original Declaration of Independence was put into better preservable shape by his treatment of that document. He was frequently called upon to decide the authenticity of valuable and ancient prints, and he was himself the possessor of rare and costly prints. He was always very close about his art and refused to divulge his secret process even to the members of his family. He was born in England and before coming to America he was an authority in his profession. For forty years he lived in a large house at 804 Gates avenue, Brooklyn, where he carried on his work.
